136th Annual Academy Meeting

The 136th Annual Academy Meeting will take place on Saturday, March 20, 2021.

Why you should plan to attend the 136th Annual Academy Meeting…

For the first time, the Indiana Academy of Science’ Annual Academy Meeting will be virtual! The 2021 annual academy meeting will offer a unique opportunity to expand research, network with colleagues, and disseminate knowledge addressing the 21st century’s most pressing challenges facing science. The 2021 virtual meeting will provide the utmost flexibility for members to connect in ways never before possible, explore ideas, and actively learn in a new, online environment.

One-Stop Experience
The 136th Annual Academy Meeting will take place on a leading virtual event platform offering a seamless experience for all meeting activities.

Watch at Your Convenience
The 136th Annual Academy Meeting will feature over 200 oral and poster science presentations, hot topic discussions and workshops. You needn’t worry about missing a session you would have liked to attend. Most sessions will be recorded and remain available to watch at your convenience, allowing for greater reach and impact.

Other Indiana science organizations and institutions
The virtual meeting will bring together several Indiana science organizations and institutions for you to experience.

Teaching and Learning sessions are included with your registration this year. No additional fees will be required for workshop participation.

Engage in Meaningful Dialogue
Supplemental session information, such as papers, slides, PDFs, and session recordings, provide additional content and context. Attendees can view the materials, follow conversations, and in most instances, engage in meaningful dialogue after the session.

Network and Engage
Attendees will be able to join conversations with scientists from 17 diverse science sections, and other senior scientists from industry and academia, science educators to include middle and high school science teachers, graduate and undergraduate science students, and science enthusiasts who are geographically dispersed, advancing research.
World class keynote speakers:

Dr. William Sullivan, Professor of Pharmacology & Toxicology and Microbiology & Immunology at the Indiana University School of Medicine.

Dr. Robert Fullilove, Professor of Sociomedical Sciences at the Columbia University Irving Medical Center and Associate Dean of Community and Minority Affairs

The Council of the Indiana Academy of Science looks forward to offering the 136th Annual Academy Meeting, and asks that you mark the dates of March 19 and 20, 2021. More information will be coming. Early bird registration will open on January 6, 2021, and abstract uploading will begin on January 15, 2021. Be an early bird registrant and receive a treasured Academy gift in appreciation!
